He made a most appropriate little speech, short, sharp and interesting, and was complimented with the heartiest applause from the Convention. Mr. Wise said he had been honestly opposed to Governor Walker; but Walker had been honestly nominated by an honest convention, and he meant to support the ticket.

Mr. Chamberlayne was also called upon and made a pleasant address. The usual thanks were tendered, and the Convention adjourned to partake of a lunch generously provided by Colonel J. L. Carrington, proprietor of the Exchange, which was greatly enjoyed, and served to enhance the good feeling which had pervaded the entire proceedings.
